2019 Global Health Landscape Symposium
“Passing the Baton in Global Health”

Doors open at 8:00 AM for breakfast
Friday, December 6, 2019

FHI 360 Conference Center 8th Floor
1825 Connecticut Ave, NW
Washington D.C.
Inspiring a New Generation of Dreamers and Doers

For the past decade, funding budgets for global health have flatlined in the U.S. and around the world. At the same time, political and public enthusiasm for our work arguably has been waning as other issues compete for mindshare. All of this was true even before the 2016 U.S. elections, the outcomes of which have demonstrated the fragility of once popular government leadership and resources.

The bench of global health policy champions also has been on the decline. Members of Congress who have, traditionally, been supporters of our work, are retiring at a rapid pace, with few replacements in sight. As a consequence, leadership and resources are not meeting the growing burden of global health issues, and advocates in Washington are, at best, having to hold the line and play defense instead of working to advance bigger, bolder goals.

This backdrop informed our vision for the 2019 Global Health Landscape Symposium, taking place on December 6. We structured the agenda to focus on redefining global health success in order to inspire a new generation of dreamers and doers.

As a community, we must introduce and explore new models and narratives for global health. We must identify new ways to stretch the boundaries that currently confine us, while continuing to use the things that have allowed us to achieve so much progress. Without doubt, we must all come together to achieve what needs to be done. That is why GHC created the Symposium: we are all far more powerful when we exchange energy and information with each other. Together, there is no question that we can create a big, bold vision for global health that we can, then, collectively work toward.

I have every expectation that this will be an important conversation that leads to real action. And, it is only the beginning of a dialogue that will continue until we are, once again, making the kind of progress we truly need in global health.

1. The Fhi 360 Conference Center offers a dedicated comfortable, private, quiet space for nursing mothers to pump their breast milk during their time at the Conference Center. The room contains comfortable chairs, refrigerator, sink, telephone, electrical outlets, distress buttons and cleaning supplies.

3. The room is located behind Academy Hall - room S897- and is available to all nursing mothers.

4. To access the room please obtain the key from the Conference Center registration desk.

5. Users may access the lactation room only for the purposes of expressing, storing and collecting breast milk.

6. Please ensure the door to the lactation room is locked during use and that the sign is switched to “occupied”.

7. It is the responsibility of everyone using the lactation room to maintain a clean room ready for the next user. All breast milk spills must be cleaned using the cleaning solutions provided.

8. Expressed milk stored in the refrigerator must be labeled with user’s name, phone number and date the milk was expressed.

9. It is the responsibility of each user to remove stored milk by 5:30 p.m. each day. In the event of a power failure, during normal work hours (7:30 a.m. – 5:30 p.m.), a Conference Center staff member will contact users to retrieve their stored breast milk.

10. Please ensure the sign is switched to “vacant” and that key is returned to the Conference Center registration desk after using the Mother’s Room.
